

Application No. 10/605,210
Response and Amendment dated February 23, 2006
Reply to Office action of August 23, 2005
Docket Number 19427/04260

57. (new) A projector according to claim 56, wherein the plurality of images are arcuately spaced around a central point of the image medium.

58. (new) A projector according to claim 51, wherein the housing is formed at least in part of polymeric material.

59. (new) A projector according to claim 51, wherein the housing is formed of two or more sections, each of which section houses one or more of the directional light source, the image medium support assembly, and the lens.

60. (new) A projector according to claim 51, wherein the shield is separate from the housing that encloses the directional light source, the image medium support assembly and the lens.

61. (new) A projector according to claim 51 wherein the mounting support is a stand.

1.126 62. ~~63.~~ (new) A projector according to claim 51 wherein the mounting support is a stake.

wcd
5/06

embodiment of Figures 21-24 may be made from two interlocking portions 310 and 312 having similar lengths. The portions 310 and 312 may be easily attached and detached using a bayonet type attachment mechanism. Upon separation the image support assemblies 302 and 304 are oriented adjacent the opening, thus allowing easy removal and change of the image source.

[0050] Figure 25 shows a display mechanism 400 which may be placed in a yard or other location when any of the projector embodiments are used outdoor. The display mechanism includes a screen 402 upon which an image may be directly displayed or upon which reflected images may be displayed. The screen is supported by two poles 404 held in place by a number of tethers 406. The screen may be made of cloth or plastic and may be generally solid or perforated in order to provide less wind resistance.

[0051] Other alterations and modifications of the invention will likewise become apparent to those of ordinary skill in the art upon reading the present disclosure, and it is intended that the scope of the invention disclosed herein be limited only by the broadest interpretation of the appended claims to which the inventors are legally entitled.

WCD
5/06